NEW TORK, March 16.—(Exclusive Dispatch. Copyright, 1900, by the New York Tribune.) The Tribune's London cable dated March 16, says that Roberts is not allowing the grass of the voldt to grow under his feet. He put three trains in motion yesterday, equipping them with engine drivers and firemen from his own troops, and sent Gen. Pole-Carew with 2000 guardsmen and a small body of mounted infantry southward. He reported in a midnight bulletin that Pole-Carew had reached Bethanie during the afternoon without opposition, and that the force was expecting to join Gatacre and Clements. Gatacre had crossed the Orange River in the morning and socupied Bethulic Clements's advance has probably taken place simultaneously. It is reported that the Dutch rearguards are retreating from the river with their guns from Norval's and Bethulic, and it is possible that they may be caught between the columns which are advancing toward 'Springsontein. Roberts has allowed three divisions to halt at Bloefontein, but he is not idle himself. He has created the impression that the Pres State government has surrendered the capital and that a military government has been substituted for it. He has kept various municipal and state officers in operation under the general supervised the military government, had by proclamation and practice is encouraging the people of the Free State government, and by proclamation and practice is encouraging the good of the fire state to follow the enimple of their own authorities and withdraw from the hopeless struggle. He can well afford to halt a fortnight in the capital, and try his hand at the game of imperial politics if he can succeed thereby in inducing Free State soldiers to desert their commandoes and return to their farms.

The American Embassy remains silent respecting the recent exchange of letters between the State Department and the Foreign Office, Henry White being too experienced a diplomat to be drawn into unwary admissions when the State Department holds back the text of the correspondence. There are many explanations from American sources, but the action of the State Department is not understood here. Englishmen are asking what Americans would have said, not long ago, if the Madrid government, in the hour of defeat, had proposed peace on the basia of Spanish retention of Cuba, Puerto had been suggested in the dispatch to Salisbury.

The fact on which Englishmen lay stress is that the only government which took notice of Kruger's appeal to the consuls was the United States. The subject came up yesterday in Parlament, when Baifour was asked by William Redmond whether the Washington government had offered its good offices with a view to bringing about peace. There was a storm of applause when Baifour, while acknowledging the friendly tone of the communication from Washington, stated that Salisbury had replied that the British government would not accept the intervention of any power in South African affairs. The use of the word intervention produces an incorrect impression, tion produces an incorrect impression, so far as the Washington government is concerned. The full text of the State Department's letter will probably throw new light upon the transaction.

[A.P. NIGHT REPORT.]

BLOEMFONTEIN, March 13.—Lor

He lay at Venters Vilet, fourteen miles away, last night, with Gen. Kelly-Kenny's and Gen. Colville's divisions. the Guards' Brigade, and the mounted infantry. Gen. French, having cut the railway and telegraphs, had a slight skirmish with some Boers holding the kopies southeast of the town. Early in the morning the cavalry brigade moved forward and occupied several kopies which commanded the Boers.

A few well-placed shells from the horse artillery drove off the enemy. Gen. French then sent out scouts to feel their way toward the town, perceiving which, the correspondents of the flydney Herald and the Loudon Dally Rens, with one other, galloped feward and entered the town, which were an every-day aspect. The people were cut shought or for morning walks, and of first the three newspaper men were regraded as townsfolk. Easter, when it became known that they were forewances of the British army, they were regreated cordinity and conducted to a club, where they met Mr. Fraser of the Executive Council, the Mayor said other officials. These they persuaded to take carriages and go to meet Lord Roberts.

Roberis was etationed, and this correspondent rode forward and had the honor of amounting to the commander-in-chief that Bloemfontein would surrender. A little laser the deputation began to approach, and Lord Roberts went forward to meet them.

The scene was picturesque in the extreme. A few yards away, the guns of a battery pointed their grim mouths toward the late position of the Boers, while the tin roofs of Bloemfontein showed in the distance.

After salutes had been exchanged, a member of the deputation stepped forward and declared that the town wished to surrender, hoping that Lord Roberts would protect life and property. He replied that providing there was no opposition, he would undertake to guarantee the security of both. The interview was very cordial, without a sign of solemness. It struck this correspondent that the deputation scemed relieved by the presence of the British troops. Lord Roberts notified the deputation of his intention of entering the town in state, and they withdrew to inform the townspeople.

Lord Roberts then made his mill-tary dispositions, ordering the first brigads to follow him, and to take possession of the town. With his staff and the military attachés, he descended the kopie and arrived on the plain, where he waited until the cavalry approached. Then he entered the city, followed by his personal staff, the general staff, the military attachés and the troops.

PROSECUTOR FORNEY TESTIFIES.

A. P. DAY REPORT.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Although the direct testimony in the Couer d'Alene investigation before the House Committee on Military Affairs is not closed, the prosecuting witnesses temporarily gave place to the first witness identified with those bringing the charges. This was J. H. Forney, the special prosecuting officer, who directed the cases before the Coroner's jury and the strand jury at the seat of the disorder. He said he had been a prosecuting official for seventeen years and was-especially appointed in this case by the Attorney-General of Idaho. The witness said the Coroner's investigation, which was much criticised in the direct examination, was conducted in the usual way, in accordance with the law. The Jury not only investigated the deaths resulting from the riot of April 29, but also the conspiracy leading up to the demonstration. The theory that a conspiracy existed gave the inquiry a broad scope. Mr. Forney said, however, that no force, violence or intimidation was used toward the witnesses.

Mr. Forney said they were not held under any specific charges, but by virtue of the Governor's proclamation declaring that the county was in a state of insurrection. This was in accordance with the law, he said, which provided that in case of insurrection the Governor can appoint a special officer with an armed force to take charge of affairs.

Bartlett Sinclair was appointed as the officer in the Arage and as the State militia was in the Philippines, the Governor called on the Federal government for troops. The witness said the United States troops assisted the State authorities in making arrests, but so far as he knew they did not make arrests or discharges independent of the State authorities. It is known, however, that he feels that Nicaragua would be justified in refusing to grant any concessions to the United States when a provision in the treaty with a third power announces that it proposes to take any measures that may seem advisable with reference to the canal for its own defense.

BOSTON, March 15.—{Exclusive Dispatch.] B. B. Bemis, alias Francis Truth, famous as a divine healer, was arrested here today by the local and Federal authorities together, charged with using the mails to defraud. The authorities claim that this is one of the most colossal frauds of the century, surpassing Miller's Franklin syndicate. At police headquarters is a small mountain of letters containing money which deluded "patients" have sent to him from all over the country. The police informed a reporter tonight that Truth has been making a net profit of $10,000 a week for months. The Boston postofice employed a special wagon to deliver a cartiond of letters containing money to Truth's office several times a day. The "healer" has been publishing two and three-column advertisements in all the leading newspapers in New Egiand for months, reciting his alleged miraculous cures. He charged a fee of $5 for treatment, which consisted solely of the "laying on of hands." The authorities claim

Although two alleged footpads are securely confined at the City Jail, the work of holding up citizens on dark streets goes merrily on.

At 10:30 o'clock last night a report was received at the Police Station stating that Fred Phillipa, a young man about 30 years old, had been held up and robbed at the corner of Twenty-first and San Pedro streets.

Captain of Detectives Bradish and Officer Ritch hastened out to the residence of young Phillips, who lives at No. 217 East Washington street, and secured a description of the footpads. One of them was described as being about five feet six inches tail and the other five feet in ins inches. They secured only a watch from Mr. Phillips. Bradish and Ritch patrolled the vicinity of the holdup until 3 o'clock this morning, but could find no one answering the description of the men they were hunting for, and finally gave up the search.

He added that the government felt the responsibility rested with those who called the meetings in the heated state of public feeling. They should be careful lest they asked more than human nature could give. The reply was regarded as unsatisfactory. Sir Campbell-Bannerman said he thought the government should have used its influence in favor of free speech and expressed regret at the fact that no satisfactory answer was given. SALISBURY'S ANSWER.

LONDON NEWSPAPER OPINION.

[A. P. NIGHT REPORT.]

LONDON, March 15.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The Standard says: "Lord Salisbury's reply will not be misunderstood in Washington or any other civilized capital. We are grateful to the Americans for their good wishes, and we should be delighted to accept their assistance if it were possible. But this quarrel is our own, and we must settle it in our own way. We have no reason to complain of platonic and vicarious affection for intervention so long as the government is quite resolved to leave it to its neighbor to begin."

The Daily News says: "The British attitude is analogous to that of the United States in the quarrel with Spain, an attitude respected by us in a manner which has been gratefully acknowledged by Gen. Alger in the North American Review. It was a happy circumstance that the first message of the kind came from a quarter in which there was so little possibility of a misunderstanding. It is quite unlikely now that France or any other power will interfere."

The Dally Chronicle says. "If Lord had solicited the intervention of the powers, but in the presence of the telegrams exchanged between the British government and the two republics it appeared that the intervention of the powers had become almost impossible. The Minister then denied that France had refused to join Russia in making a friendly suggestion in the direction of peace.

The union between France and Russia, M. Delcasse declared, draws closer every day, and defies all malevolent assertions to the contrary.

France, he added, had never ceased to be the generous nation the world has known and admired and sometimes abandoned, but, after some hard and sometimes cruel experiences, she can no longer admit that her duty to the world should stand before her obligations to herself.

Louter Wessels, a representative of the Orange Free State, made speeches. Van Hoesen prophesied that not until all the Boers are in their graves or all the English are in flight will the war be over. President McKinley's name was hissed and hooted and the mention of Bryan's name brought forth cheers. White made the references to Bryan that were cheered. Referring to his interview with regard to the probable destruction of Johannesburg by the Boers, White said: "A nation making war cannot provide a drawing-room for its enemy. The Boers would neither have lost nor gained by the destruction of Bloemfontein, but the case of Johannesburg is different, as it would provide splen-did barracks accommodation for the British, and by reason of its location and other advantages, an invaluable base for operation."

"I agree with you that the United States is under obligation to extend its tariff laws to the island of Puerto Rico. But I cannot accept your contention that this obligation is derived from the Constitution which, in my judgment, does not of its force apply to annexed territories. The obligation is moral, not constitutional.

"As the President said with equal truth and felicity, it is our plain duty." We are bound to this course by solemn promises. The supreme and irresistible reason. For removing all customs barriers between the United States and Puerto Rico is the promise made by Gen. Miles when the first landing was made by American forces on the island that the Puerto Ricans accepted American sovereignty, not only without opposition but with joyful trust and confidence. The present issue is simply this: Shall we repudiate or shall we fuifill the national engagement? Shall this great republic break faith with the little island of Puerto Rico? Rican iegislation is testing us before the eyes of the Filipinos, who keep well informed of all our doings. They will judge by this legislation of the value of American promises. When the ablest and most statesmanlike of Aguinaldo's emissaries to the Philippine Commission once expressed the fear that the American government might not keep the promises it was making, for Spain (said he) made promises and broke them I silenced him with the reply: Señor, the United States is not Spain. Is he now to learn, are all the Filipinos now to learn, that in the first legislation for our dependencies we prove faithless to our pledges and recreant to our obligations? Such an exhibition of ourselves will strengthen the hands of Aguinaido and the insurrents. because, it unhappily can be used to support their position in the statement that the Americans are no more trustworthy than the Spanjards.

"At the very moment when we need worthy than the Spanjards.

"At the very moment when we need to Inspire confidence in the minds of the conquered Filipinos, shall we commit an act which will confirm their disfrust of us, quicken their suspicions and breed new and perhaps ineradicable antipathy? God forbid."

In Northern China.

Upon the Minister's representation, the State Department has decided that an American warship shall be dispatched from the fleet at Manila to the nearest convenient port to the seat of the discord, probably, in this case, Taku, at the mouth of the Pie-Ho River, or Wel Hal Wel.

It is expected, however, that the Chinese government will be able to restrain the "Boxers" without any action on the part of the American warship. It is distinctly understood that this little naval demonstration will have no connection with the struggle now going on between the Empress Dowager's party and the reformers, for this may be regarded as a matter of purely internal policy, with which our government has no right to concern itself. It is probable, therefore, that this decision on our part indicates the character of the response that will be made by the Department of State to the cablegram from the American Association.

[A. P. EARLIX A.M. REPORT.]

CHICAGO, March 15.—A special to the Tribune from Ottawa, Ont., says that desk-pounding, paim-slapping, slinging of epithets, and choruses of groans chraacterised yesterday aftermoon's proceedings in the House of Commons. It began with Sir Wiltred Laurier declining to grant further courtesies to the opposition with regard to notices on the order paper. G. E. Foster took objection amid manifeststions of approval and disapproval. Foster angrily nicknamed Sir Wilfred "His High Mightiness." "a Visier," "a Caar of all the Russlas." "His Majerty," and so forth.

When the Speaker had succeeded in restoring order, Sir Wilfred reproved the opposition for violating the rules of decency, which brought up Sir Charles Tupper with the counter-charge that only a few nights back, Sir Wilfred's followers had shown their sense of decency by saying he had violated all the Ten Commandments.

There was a roar that drowned Sir Charles's voice, and Sir Richard Cartwight got up and insignated it was probably in Sir Charles's own interest the question was not gone into Sir Wilfred caught the Speaker's eve and rose to assert the dignity of the House, and said he would not indulge in personalities. The scene continued until "A or of the sitting."

The best record of stright kills is 213, but the record was made in different events, that is, the shooter made straight kills in several different events, resting between each event. Fanning's record is exceptionally brilliant, in view of the fact that

At the daily conference today with newspaper correspondents, Mr. Sheldon was asked why he did not publish the names of those through whom he made the comparisons, and replied:

"Because the names are legion. This city is full of that class of people and I did not think it right to single out a half dosen sinners and give their names. If I could have given the entire list I might do so, but that would be impossible. I don't know that I twould print them anyway. I am looking into the future and beyond to remedy the evil and to persuade people to be more honest in the matter of assessment."

Asked if he holds that more good can be accomplished by creating public sentiment against places of evil and evil things, destroy the business and not name the guilty parties, Mr. Sheldon said:

"That is my idea. I believe in training the children right. I take the position that it is cheaper to prevent crime than to punish it. That is the view I take in my church and parish work. Unprecedented Cold Weather.
WASHINGTON, March 15. — About eight inches of snow fell here today, and tonight there is a driving hall, with prospects of intermittent hall, snow or sleet until some time tomorrow. Considerable of the early snow melted as it fell. The record is probably unprecedented for this locality for this acason of the year. Reports received at the Weather Bureau show that the storm has prevailed over a great extent of the tarritory sast of the Mississipol River.

specially for this purpose, and requires eightly amperes of current, being rated at 23,000 candle power. The lamp is so mounted as to be quickly shifted into any desired position, and held absolutely free of any vibration. A spetal band hides the light from the patient. There is a pan to catch any sparks which may drop from the carbons. The lower carbon is solid, % of an inch in diameter; the upper carbon is cored and 1 inch in diameter. It has been found that carbons with even a very minute core will not work well for the lower carbon, since it makes the light unsteady. The light is led down to the patient through a telescopic tibe, and by means of an apparatus designed to receive the rays and transmit them to the diseased portion of the skin. The idea of this arrangement is to allow the operator to bring the tube into any position that may be desired. Quartz is used for the two plano-convex lenses at the end of the tube. It is preferable to glass, because it allows the short violet and uitra-violet rays of the arc lamp to pass through it more readily than glass. At the end of the tube is a chamber filled with distilled water, the function of which is to cool down the rays that pass through it, so that they will not have any burning effect upon the skin. This new method of curing skin diseases, while eminently successful—Dr. Finsen has had under his supervision over 350 cases of lupus, all of which were estisfactorily treated—is necessarily slow, as only one portion of the skin can be exposed to the rays at a time, and this has to be repeated very often. Electricians are regarding this new application of electricity with much satisfacton, since it is a further indorsement of the therapeutic value of the electric light. It also proves that when a source of light is required to approach closely both in intensity and quality to the sun, the medical profession recognizes the arc light as the best substitute.

PRISON REFORM.

CHIEF ELTON STOPS SMUGGLING
IN THE CITY JAIL.

Chief of Police Eiton is not taking any chances that any of the prisoners entrusted to his care shall escape. In the first place the Chief is personally doing the best he can to place the criminal element where it belongs, and after that he is trying to see that those who constitute it remain there until they have done their mesed of penance.

Under the former administration escapes from the chain gang were frequent, and it was a common thing for things of convenience to prisoners to be smuggled into fail, but the new Chief, among many other reforms, has taken steps to prevent this sort of thing.

Every afternoon when the chain gang comes in from work. Chief Eiton has the members of the gang searched. The result has proved the wisdom of this action. In the last few days a number of articles have been taken from prisoners that might have proved dangerous in their hands. One man had a saw concealed about his person; another had a file; another a bottle of coal oil and still another a bottle of coal oil and still another a bottle of blackstrap oil to lubricate any filing of sawing that would have to be done to regain liberty.

It is a common thing, also, for opium to be smuggled to prisoners. Membary of the chain gang whose time is should to expire often show others who have a long time to serve, where they will hide things for their benefit. A rock of a clod where the gang is working, is usually chosen as the place of transfer, but Chief Eiton, by searching the prisoners when they come in how work, has succeeded in relieving prisoners when they come in how others who have a long time to serve, where they will hide things for their benefit. A rock of a clod where the gang is working, is usually chosen as the place of transfer, but Chief Eiton, by searching the prisoners have been in, the habit of passing notes out through them and receiving opium, implements and weap-improvement in agricultural conditions now," as the American Agriculturist will observes, "contrasted with the depth of appreciated by the outside public as was the farmers' condition during the hard times. It is conservative, however, to say that the produce of United States farms for the past year was worth to the farmers over $1,500,000,000 more than in either of the years of depression. This is an average advance of 31 per cent. In values compared with the low point." It further appears from the American Agriculturist's summary that the live stack of the country is worth $700,000,000 more than it was worth during the years of depression under the Cleveland régime—a gain of 38 per cent. Staple crops are valued at $400,000,000 mere then then, and other crops aggregate an increase of $200,000,000 in value, or a gain of 35 per cent., as compared to the period of depression, including the years 1894, 1895 and 1896.

As regards agricultural real estate, it is found that while that class of property depreciated greatly during the hard times (while the Wilson tariff law, an appreximation to free trade, was in force.) it has more than recovered in m 1896, was not in favor of the tien of a free-trade regime the farmers were fooled, but agh of them were fooled to victory to Bryan and the free-tiey. The popular verdict was of protection, and in obedience verdict a law was emacted, still in farce, raising the tariff a point where they protect

The Hague Peace Conference was a commendable effort on the part of the nations which participated in it to bring about a movement for the abolition of war as a means of settling human differences. The spirit which inspired the participants in that conference was noble and humans. The only trouble is that the work of the conference was for the most part impracticable, theoretical, and Utopian. Still, if the conventions above referred to are at length ratified by the nations participating in the conference, a distinct step forward will have been achieved, and the good thus attained may bear fruit at a later time.

Until some radical changes shall have been effected in the characteristics of been effected in the characteristics of human nature, ware will be of more or less frequent occurrence in spite of peace conventions, agreements, treaties and other things designed to secure per-petual peace. Men are so constituted at the present time that might and right are too often regarded as con-vertible terms. Theoretically, arbitra-tion is the simplest and best method of vertible terms. Theoretically, arbitra-tion is the simplest and best method of settling disputes. In practical operation, however, arbitration has thus far proved very much of a failure. All the peace agreements in the world will not deter two nations from fighting if they have made up their minds to do so. It may be that in the course of evolu-tion, some generations hence, the weaktion, some generations hence, the weak-nesses and passions of men will be so far eliminated or brought under re-straint that war will be a thing un-known. But that millennial time has not yet arrived, nor is it even in sight.

In the mean time, while war is a colossal svil, to be avoided at all hazards if possible, there are some evils that are even worse than war, and which are quite as much in need of the attention of statesmen, of philanthro-pists, and of reformers generally.

GRAND JURY APPLIES A THIN COAT TO WALTER MOORE.

Been Made and a Conspiracy Directly Charged, but No Action Taken.

Report Even Suppresses the Fact That Partner.

Particulars of Corruption Given to th Grand Jury-Row Moore Tried to Persuade Ed Smith to Perjure

ON THE TRAIL

There is an interesting story behind this whole section of the report, and when the truth is known it will be seen that the grand jury administered a coat of whitewash to official corthis whole section of the report, and when the truth is known it will be seen that the grand jury administered a coat of whitewash to official corruption, the full particulars of which were related to the jury, not by one witness alone, but by several and all of them, of course, under oath, About January I, it may have been a few days after, City Auditor Cargon was summoned before the grand jury and interrogated as to whether his records showed that Walter S. Moore had collected certain money ($1200) on account of the purchase of fire-alarm boxes. He was directed to produce the old demands which had been paid by the City Treasurer and did so. He took to the grand jury room certain demands dated September, 1877, and others later, but these demands were in every way regular. The fact that he had been summoned before the jury and that those particular demands were in every way regular. The fact that he had been summoned before the jury and that those particular demands were the subject of inquiry became known, and as it had been more than suspected that all had not been right in purchases for the fire department, it was naturally and rightly supposed that the grand Jury was investigating that department. The fact that the City Auditor had been before the body was published and the reason for his having been summoned was also published, with a statement of the particular demands which he took with him.

As a result of that publication the foreman of the grand Jury, E. C. Bichowsky, received a letter a day or two later, which cut out for the jury a task that has kept them busy for many a day since. The letter contained many particulars of official corruption in the fire department; told who knew the facts; save many of the facts; suggested the course by which additional facts as to fraud and theft could be obtained. A copy of this letter was sent to The Times, and the grand jury was informed of that fact. The next day a member of the jury called at the Times office and asked that the jury just such an opportunity to tons. The Cohn bid was really Walter Moore's bid, as the fact will show. I After the award of the contracts Moore and N. H. McLean, the man now in fail for felony embesslement for swindling Cohn, drove out to Andy Donahue's place on Western avenue, a mile below the city, and bought a quantity of hay. Donahue was to deliver the fay. Donahue was to deliver the fay. Donahue was to deliver the city, go to Moore for instructions, and from him obtain a voucher or note to Cohn, who would pay for the load when that note was presented to him. The city really got sixty-three tons, delivered at the various engine-houses, and at the corporation yard. Two loads, large ones, at least two tons, were delivered at the Eagle stables, where McLean kept his horse. This hay at the Eagle stables was to pay for the keeping of McLean's horse. Cohn paid Donahue for it, as usual, making in all sixty-five tons which he paid for. That was all the hay delivered on that contract, but Cohn collected for 160 tons from the city. His son cashed the demand for it, although Cohn never saw any of the hay, never arranged for its purchase, but left the whole matter to Moore and McLean. Now let me suggest this course to you:

"Summon Donahue first, and ask him who really contracted for the delivery of the hay. He will tell you, for he is under the impression that you know all about the matter, and that if he lies to you he will be prosecuted for perfury. Ask him about the collection of the money first, as to the amount paid him (verify this later from the Auditor's records.)

Then ask him how much hay was delivered on the contract, where it was purchased, to whom delivered, how much paid for it. He cannot tell you truthfully, for he does not know, because he and his father left the entire matter to Moore and McLean. If you derire, all his father as a witness and question him in the same manner. He cannot tell you where the thirty-odd tons that was never delivered came from Moore. If he does, have Donahue she that he case he has against McLean did not

Moore replied that the grand Jury got hold of that hay deal, and had the bills. He then remarked:

"We're gone if we can't fix it."

Moore said he wanted Smith to go and see Donahus and get him to swear that he sold sixty-five tons of hay to cohn and not to Moore and McLean. To this Moore replied that the hay had been sold to Moore and McLean. To this Moore replied that there was no other way out of it. Asked how he intended to fix it with Cohn, who knew that only sixty-five tons had been delivered, Moore replied by asking Smith to see Cohn and get him to swear that he had delivered thirty-five tons to Smith in September while Moore was away. Moore said that Cohn would do this, and then all that Smith had to do was to corroborate Cohn's statement and that would settle the hay deal.

Had this nice little arrangement been carried out, all of those who engaged in it would have been guilty of felony, but it was not carried out prefused to lend himself to perjury and subornation of perjury, but then and there he had a quarrel with Moore. To still further clinch the matter and to prevent the possibility of such a scheme being successfully worked. Smith, when he again went before the grand jury, and he was there a number of times, told that body that Cohn had not delivered any hay to him, thus putting it up to Moore. McLean and Cohn to account for the thirty-five tons were not accounted for, as is shown by the grand jury's report, but that report does not state who was implicated in the fraud which it mentions, although the members of the jury knew all about it. Whether the suggestion, which the jury makes to the city that it should take steps to recover the $400 paid on the hay contract, will be followed depends upon the action of the City Council.

What the grand jury ascertained as to the inforceation contained in the latter part of the letter upon which it acted is not known, but when it skims over such glaring charges as were made about the hay deal, it could not be expected that much would be contained in the re

A little deal which the grand jury saw fit to wholly ignore in its report was a sale of fire hose to the city in which N. H. McLean, an ex-convict and a member of the Poker Davis gang of bunco sharks, was directify interested and in which there is reason to believe Walter S. Moore also was interested.

Last year the city advertised for bids for 15,000 feet of fire hose, and the prospect of such a large contract resulted in the keenest competition among dealers in hose. It so happened that the finances of the city at that time were in such condition that it was found to be impossible to purchase that quantity of hose, and finally only 6000 feet were purchased, but this did not make the competition for the contract any the less keen. About the time that the purchase of hose was first considered, McLean and Moore were seen much together. They frequently an-port at the last meeting of the Council. Its report was written last Monday morning, and in it the recommendation was made "that the city electrician notify all interested companies that they must strictly comply with the ordinances."

Why this report was not presented and acted upon is not known. One of the members of the board stated yesterday that he did not know what the report had contained, although his signature appeared on it, and the portion of it with reference to overhead wires had been crossed out. It was announced at the afternoon session of the Council Monday that the matter would not be considered until the coming meeting, and today at the regular session of the board, that of enforcing the ordinance and compelling the removal of many overhead wires now spanning the streets, or the amending of the ordinance and compelling the removal of many overhead wires now spanning the streets, or the amending of the ordinance in such a manner as the permit these wires to remain.

Only two companies are now openly violating the conduit ordinance, the Los Angeles District Messenger Company, and the California District Messenger Company, a concern said to be composed of young men who have built up what business they have by their own efforts. Although the relations between these two companies have heretofore been seemingly cordinal, there are in the present movement to enforce the law indications that the Los Angeles company in business in this city.

Ball, who was at that time living in this city with his wife, Laura E. Ball. He was and is a man of wealth and position. Mrs. McClelland and the captain, it is alleged, were soon completely infatuated with each other, and conspired together to procure for him a divorge from his wife, Laura, or to cause sufficient grounds to exist for her to get a divorce from him.

On March 6, 1897, Mrs. Laura Ball began her suit, allegine extreme cruelty in the summer and fall of 1894, in that the captain showed that he had formed a great attachment for and subsequently become "completely infatuated with and subject to the influence and control of one Mrs. Bertha S. McClelland." Mrs. Ball got her divorce all right enough.

The captain and Mrs. McClelland were married on April 24, 1897, McClelland were married on April 24, 1897, McClelland in fraud of her husband. McClelland, therefore, asks Judgment against defendants for $13,500, and that the decree of divorce by which his wife was divorced from him be set aside as null and vold.

Answering all the allegations of the complainant, defendants set up a general denial, and, as another and separate cause of defense, they come forward with a grant, bargain and sale deed, conveying to plaintiff from defendant, Mrs. Ball, property in Monrovia and Arcadia, and she also surrendered to him all her right and interest in a certain claim for $4500 for services rendered by him, after their marriage, to "Lucky" Baldwin. In consideration of these transactions McClelland relinquished, it is alleged, all claims of every kind whatsoever on his behalf against Mrs. Ball; and it is alleged, all claims of every kind whatsoever. The date of this settlement was January 21, 1896. It should be understood that the Balls regard the suit now on trial as a blackmailing proposition.

Testimony was taken all day yesterday and at 5 p.m. court adjourned until this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

BAD BOY BURGLAR.

OPINION OF MR. WATERS ON THE PROPOSED TREATIES.

Beoretary Wiggins of the Chamber of Commerce is in receipt of a letter from Congressman Waters expressing the opinion that the French and Argentine treaties which threatened the California citrus industry are dead, and that they will stay dead. Mr. Waters feels sure the treaties will not be dug out of the pigeon holes of the Finance Committee until after the coming Presidential election.

A clipping from the Washington Post of recent date is enclosed in Congressman Waters's letter, which expresses the opinion that the opposing forces in the treaty fight are more active than the friends, and that the treaty is buried beyond hope of resurrection.

The credit for the defeat of these rection.

The credit for the defeat of these treaties is due to the California delegation, and to the work done by the delegates from the Citrus Growers Tariff Committee. M. J. Daniels, who has represented the committee at Washington during the winter, is now on his way home, being convinced that the necessity for his presence no longer exists. Any further work that is necessary will be attended to by R. W. Gates.

SENTENCED TO FOLSOM.

Frank Delgarns, a strikingly handsome lad of about 17 years, whose reputation is diseased with the microbes of crime, was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary at Folsom by Judge Smith yesterday. Delgarns was formerly a Pomona boy, but of late he has been hanging about this city, and is now on his way to prison for burglary. He pleaded guilty to the information against him, and with a few skilled words tried to explain away the wickedness of his misdeed, but Judge Smith brought him up with a smart halt by saying that he understood him to be a very bad boy—too bad, in fact, for the Reform School. Delgarns looked pretty gium after the court's remark, and, shifting all his weight upon one foot, scratched his head very thoughtfully. The offense to which he pleaded guilty was burglary in the first degree. About 7 o'clock on the evening of February 2 he entered a house back of Hotel Buck-

EX-MEMBER WANTS DAMAGES.
Samuel H. Clem began suit yesterday against Nietos Lodge, No. 197, LO.O.F., to obtain a judgment for $3253.

On February 16, 1893, Clem became a scarlet degree member of the Odd Fellows, and as such under the bylaws of the lodge, entitled to certain sick benefits. Every scarlet degree member, who by reason of sickness or unavoidable accident is disabled from following his usual occupation or otherwise earning a livelihood, shall receive from the funds of the lodge nothing for the first week's sickness or disability, but thereafter the sum of 36 a week for twenty-six weeks for any one sickness or disability, he shall receive the sum of 44 a week.

In the month of July, 1898, plaintiff became afflicted with pulmonary consumption, and ever since that time has been unable to do anything at his usual occupation of fruit grower. Until December 23, 1898, he received his benefits without a hitch, but at that time the lodge ceased to pay him anything further, having expelled him, it is alleged, on false and fraudulently procured charges.

BREACH OF PROMISE. BREACH OF PROMISE.

BIG DAMAGE SUIT BEGUN.

A breach of promise suit of colossal proportions has emanated out of the quiet confines of Pasadena. Clara E. Ecroyd has filed an action in the Superior Court of this county against W. W. McGregory, praying judgment against the defendant for damages in the sum of $75,000. Mrs. Ecroyd alleges that McGregory on June 4, 1899, asked her to become his wite, and promised to marry her within a reasonable time, and confiding in his promise she has continued to remain sole and single. On the 12th inst. she specifically requested him to make good his promise and, it is alleged, he refused to do so, whereupon she instituted proceedings for damages.

McGregory is a wealthy mining man, about 50 years of age, and a bachelor, who lives with his mother in Pasadena. They have an elegant home on California street. His mining interests are largely in Montana.

Mrs. Ecroyd, who is 30 or 35 years of age, came to this county from Ventura about six years ago. She is eald to be a very handsoms woman. A year or so ago she became acquainted with McGregory and an arrangement was perfected whereby she agreed to take full charge of his household affairs. The romance that began henceforth, it is alleged, was very displeasing to the mother, who finally persuaded her con to forego the marital relation under his pseuliarly favorable conditions of life. Now a breach of promise suit is added to the list of his cares and anxieties. BIG DAMAGE SUIT BEGUN.

The most important transfer of business property that has been made in Los Angeles for some time past was the sale of the Laughlin building, No. 2, on South Broadway, adjoining the big Laughlin Block. This sale was reported in one of the papers as having been made a couple of weeks ago, but the report was premature, the papers having only just been completed.

The building is firproof, and up to date in every respect. Above the ground floor it has the largest plate glass of any building in the United States. Of the County School Superintendent's office, the report says:
"The books of this office seem to show something of inexactness, which caused considerable expense of time and trouble in examining same, although they were essentially correct.
Of the County Board of Education and its recent exploits, the grand jury says:

"The safety of the public demands such a law in this commonwealth: In the meantime the Board of Supervisors and city officials should pass ordinances prohibiting the sale and use of illuminating oils below a certain safe firetest, and providing for the employment of competent inspectors, whose duty it shall be to make frequent tests of oil and enforce the provisions of the ordinances. At present this state is the dumping ground for all low-grade oil."

The report concludes with the following

RECOMMENDATIONS:

"We strongly recommend that fees and perquisites, of whatsoever sort, which are now being paid to different officials, be turned into the county treasury; such officials receiving only their definitely-fixed salary, and we would therefore impress upon our legislators the urgent necessity for such a change in the laws as would carry out the above recommendation.

"We also recommend that the law be so amended as to allow the city and the county of Los Angeles to merge the offices of City Assessor and County Assessor into one office; likewise the office of County Tax Collector and City Tax Collector into one office.

"We recommend that a valuation of realty for the assessment list be made only once in four years, and that during the second year of the administration of each assessor.

"In view of the fact that our investigation shows, on the Treasurer's books, a monthly balance averaging about $500,000, such sum being withdrawn from circulation by being iocked up in safe deposit vaults for which the county pays an annual rental of $500. This withdrawal helps to cause a stringency, at times, in the local money market.

"Were this money deposited with national banks, and other approved depositories, this tendency would be avoided and a reasonable rate of interest secured for the county; such banks being under good and sufficient bonds to repay the whole or any portion of such deposits upon demand of the County Treasurer. We recommend that the laws be so amended as to provide for such disposal of the county funds."

freights, increasing popularity of the navel orange, the discouragements that beset importations—all these, and the fact that California has the monopoly of domestic orange growing lead to the conclusion that there will be no overplus for heveral years, at least. Another point in conclusion is that the business of orange growing is beaet with difficulties that keep out only the most enterprising husbandmen. The shiftless have no need of orange groves, even if they could have them as gifts. When fruit is raised to the extent of bringing the output approximately up to the demand the competition between sections will force out those whose natural conditions are poor. It will be the survival of the fittest, leaving a large area in the business to hold the trade for, America.

I notice that several orange packers are paying more attention to the specialities of the trade. Some of the houses are shipping large quantities of fancy oranges in half boxes. Fruit of this class has been sent out for years in small baskets crated somewhat like strawberries, and some fruit has been marketed in half boxes. But the quantity has been so small that it has not been considered a feature of the trade. Last week I saw 300 half boxes of fancy mavels loading in one car for the New York trade. It was not done as an experiment, but on the demand of a prominent house whose trade had asked for the fruit in more convenient and necessarily more expensive packages. Hereafter we may look for every first-class packing-house to be equipped with a supply of half boxes that it may be able to fill orders in packages to meet all the requirements of the demand.

I come across a farmer occasionally in my rounds preparing to have the witch-hazel magician locate a proposed well for him. This deathless superstition is expensive and altogether unprofitable, and its votaries stand before the court of common sense convicted of perpetuating the foolish 'magic of the dark ages. If the rancher who expects to put down a well wishes expert advice he should consult any individual whose powers of observation

Concerning Pully Oranges. In REPLY to a query as to the rause of puffy oranges. Prof. S. M. Woodbridge adds his testimony on the points at issue. Readers of this department are eagerly looking for information upon this important subject, and they will be gratified to know that most of the trouble is over for this season, and that whatever deterioration the oranges may experience from now till the end of the season will be through the natural ripening and decay of the fruit. Prof. Woodbridge said in a recent conversation:

through the natural ripening and decay of the fruit. Prof. Woodbridge said in a recent conversation:

"The subject of puffy or imperfect oranges is somewhat difficult to treat in a short interview, for the reason that it is so intimately connected with all phases of fruit growing, namely climatic conditions, proper irrigation, cultivation, fertilization, and, to some extent, with pruning, that in order to do justice to the subject the bearing of each one of these subjects would have to be discussed in their relation to fruit growing. Undoubtedly Mr. Mc-Fadden of Placentia has stated the case correctly and fully, with the exception of the effect of plant food upon the fruit. Let it be remembered that all fruit, including oranges, should be harvested when it is ripe. Nature has provided that after any species fully matures. deterioration commences, only ending in decay and utter disintegration of those materials which went to build up the original matter. So no one must expect to preserve an orange, either on the tree or off, for any great length of time after it is fully matured or ripe.

The process of building up an orange is naturally a continuous one from the time the buds begin to swell until the fruit is matured, and thus it is built up by chemical action. If this delicate process of nature is interfered with, either by forcing, as by putting improper plant food into the soil, or by retarding the action, as by want of water, of course perfection of the fruit cannot be attained.

"Mr. McFadden is correct when he says that trees must not be neglected in any way, either by insufficiency of water supply, or by over-watering, by insufficient cultivation or fertilization. Undoubtedly the immederate use of nitrogen in any of the forms in which it is usually applied to the soil will accelerate chemical action, and in this way we notice both by theory and practical experience that nitrogen will cause the orange to puff unless there is a corre-

Californis Orange Culture.

The following interesting article is an editorial from the Cincinnati Commercial Tribune of February 28, and shows to what extent California oranges have made an impression upon the Eastern people. Letters from the trade and from consumers and friends to whom sample boxes have been sent by friends all voice the fact that our fruit is now regarded as equal to or superior to all other oranges received in the Eastern markets. The Tribune says:

"Already there are fears for the Florida orange erop, but of the California output there appears no cause for apprehension. There is, indeed, a noticeable abundance in the current supply and the future prospect is declared to be of the best. It is said that this gratifying plenty is the successful result of an attempt to raise that fruit on a large scale in California orange was anything but pleasant to the taste and the prediction was general that it would be impossible to produce palatable oranges on the Pacific Coast. The fruit was coarse grained and acrid to the taste. The growers were not discouraged, however, and after years of trial they have succeeded in producing an orange as fine grained and palatable as any grown in Florida.
"From a commercial point of view."

The Litchard Bill.

The annual legislative fight is on between the farmers of New York and the commission merchants of the cities of the State. Every session of the Lexislature has witnessed the presentation of a bill requiring the commission men to make affidavit to the name of the parties purchasing goods sold on commission, to give the date and price of sale and the residence of the purchaser. It has been defected every year by the combined efforts of the commission merchants. This session the proposed enactment is called the Litchard Bill, and its requirements are similar to those of its defeated predecessors. Fortunately for California citrus fruit growers, the commission business has few terrors, for the oranges and lemons were sold on commission, but now a large percentage is sold by the growers themselves through their own agents, or sold in the orchard or packing house.

There are many objections to the the German experts have themselves stated officially that while it may be necessary to examine and prohibit the importation of "raw" fruit, the "restrictions in regard to dried fruit are utterly unnecessary, and a hindrance to trade. Last year, it will be remembered, the Beigian government sent experts to California, who reported back that "the drying methods used in curing fruit in the United States effectually kill the insects."

In the light of all this the only conclusion possible is that Germany's action is not justifiable, and that the unnecessary annoyance should be removed. Northern California cured fruit exporters might learn a lesson from the citrus growers of this end of the raisina, not intentionally, perhaps, but in effect the same. It now develope that the association cannot maintain prices by contracts, and several packers have been released by the growers of the ground that the packers who had contracted to sell at stipulated prices were cutting the agreed rates. They have been "disapproved" by the association in consequence. The tabooed packers now threaten the raisin growers with a suit to test the legality of the combine, and the growers of the contract with the packers to contract with the growers to handle there is it uniawful for the packers to contract with the growers of the contract with the growers of the growers of the contract with the growers of the growers o number of well established principles and brings out a few new facts. In the first place, it was shown, as has been demonstrated many times before, that it will not pay to cook feed for hogs where the economy of pork production is the sole consideration. The most economical time to slaughter swine is when the hogs weigh from 175 to 200 pounds. However, after the pigs weigh 100 pounds the quantity of food consumed for every pound of live weight put on gradually increases.

The greatest and most economical gains are made when the hogs are able to eat and digest the greatest amount of food in proportion to their weight. However, in spite of this consideration, pigs whose rations are comparatively limited make on the whole more esonomical gains than those that are rushed. Soaking grain for twenty-four hours increases its fattening qualities largely, because it enables the animal to digest the food more completely. Skim milk adds materially to the value of the grain ration. In these experiments 100 pounds of skim milk, however, varies with the amount fed. The poorest returns per pound are obtained when the proportion of skim milk to the total feed is the greatest. Feeding mixed feed, suca as barley, peas and oats with milk insures a fine quality of meat. Frozap wheat which cannot be sent to market may be used as a profitable feed for hogs. The type of animal influences the character of meat more than the breed. The mere fact that a hog is Yorkshire or Tamworth does not necessarily insure a good bacon carcass.—[Orange Judd Farmer.

Beet Tops and Leaves.

M. R. MENDELSON, chemist of the Mamerican Beet Sugar Company, explained in last Friday's number of this paper how the figures about beet tops as given in the circular letter of the American Beet Sugar Company to the farmers have been made up.

Now I am not going to fight about the question if this manner to figure by the value is correct. The fact that Mr.

Mendelson finds it necessary to make a personal statement in behalf of the correctness of the circular letter, seems to show that this part of the letter was made according to his information, and it is granted that he gave them as correct as he could.

HEAT IN WINE MAKING. A recently brought-out, although thoroughly tested, process in the production of wine, and particularly red wines, consists in subjecting the grapes to the action of heat and pressure instead of using them cold and allowing the juice to exude by the natural pressure of the mass, or by very slight artificial pressure for the first crus, says the Scientific American. The new process has for its results: The solution of all the red coloring matter of the grape in its own juice before fermentation; the sterilization of the "must;" the production of a wine of a quality superior to that of normal samples from the same grapes by the old methods.

The experiments which have led to the above results and conclusions were made on the vintages of 1887 and 1888, both in Tunis and in France. More than 100 tons of grapes were thus heated at seven different observation stations. All the resulting wines, without exception, have been better than those from the same grapes under the traditional conditions. Among other things it has been shown by these experiments that the grapes thus heated for the purpose of dissolving the red coloring matter in the juice lose their resistance to pressure and hence give a greater yield of juice than the non-heated. The juice extracted under the press has a richer color than that allowed to run out under natural or very slight artificial pressure.

The wine resulting from this fermentation has more color and more body also than that from the old process, which is reverse (without pressure,) of what has always been observed in comparing the first and the last crus by the cold process. The sterilization of the "must" obtained by heating permits the careful study of the effects of various kinds of ferments upon the same juice. In this connection there have been employed experimentally ferments of various kinds including those from some of the most celebrated high-grade wines or

If the engineers, after a survey of the ground, can recommend a feasible plan of saving the water and delivering it upon the Los Alamitos mesa, and other grounds that only need irrigation water to become of large value, the formation of a company to handle the water is promised. This would meet with the entire approval of the "peatlanders," who are interested only in getting rid of the water, and would provide an amicable and satisfactory settlement of the question. PHENOMENAL NEW OIL WELL.

BANTA BARBARA, March 15.—(Regular Correspondence.) A well different from all wells formerly found in Summerland, was opened there on the Southern Pacific Company's wharf late last night. Parties coming from there tonight say that the well is a phenomenon. The pipes plerced an eighty-foot stratum of oil sand which was cut through. Shale was then struck, and at 350 feet a flow of heavy black oil was struck. This soon ceased, and a light oil of a clear green color came up. This was of a quality hitherto unseen in this territory. The well flowed so that it outran the tank capacity of the company owning the well, and barrols of oil ran over the wharf from which the well was sunk and into the ocean. The well was capped late tonight. It is thought that it is a hundred-barrel well.
